Universities under Section 2 (f) of the UGC act, 1956 as well as those institutions declared as 'deemed to be universities' under Section 3 of the said Act, enjoy similar academic powers of teaching, research and examination, and conferral of degrees or other awards, however, only universities' created by legislatures can affiliate colleges and institutions 'deemed to be universities' can have their constituent units under certain conditions specified by the UGC. All universities created by legislatures, as well as institutions declared as 'deemed to be universities' are required to maintain standards of education, as prescribed by relevant laws.

Since Institutions are declared as 'deemed to be universities' under a Central Act, regulation of fee and academic matters are under the purview of Acts of Parliament, and not under laws enacted by State Legislatures.

The University Grants Commission has no proposal for prescribing uniform fee or course structure for all deemed universities.
